what's on your résumé?

Arcadia University can provide you with the opportunity of a lifetime.

You spend essential time in a classroom to prepare you for the world. And your experiences on campus – research projects, volunteer initiatives, and managing time and resources – are all building blocks for a successful professional future. But why not round out your qualifications with a practical work component that is not “just” a job?

An overseas internship can expand your vision of real-world experience in ways you never dreamed possible. As a result, you will arrive at graduation with a clear professional advantage. You will be immersed in a vocational experience that is informed by supporting courses, at your choice of seven exciting global destinations, with programs ranging in duration from a summer to a semester. Not only do our internships provide you with on-the-job experience, they are also credit-bearing programs that will challenge you to apply what you learn in the classroom to the workplace, and vice versa.

During your program, you'll spend anywhere from one to four days per week in the workplace, assisting in a capacity that is tailor-made for your interests. We are proud to offer Parliamentary Internships in Australia, England, Ireland, and Scotland, and our scope is not limited to students with a keen interest in world government. Our team of expert internship managers ensures that all students – from fine arts and graphics majors, to aspiring financial executives, to those with a humanities background who desire a placement in public relations or marketing, to those interested in the social service sector – will all receive a placement that suits their professional goals. From an Australian advertising agency to the London Zoo, the range of well-established opportunities we provide will enhance your understanding of your chosen field of study, and serve as an essential component of your professional development.

why choose arcadia for internships?

The Arcadia University Center for Education Abroad has more than 60 years of experience in sending students overseas, and we currently work in 14 different countries (Australia, China, England, France, Greece, Ireland, Italy, India, New Zealand, Scotland, South Africa, Spain, Tanzania, and Wales) and with 100 different programs. In addition to our internship programs, students can undertake academic studies in every discipline. There are also a variety of opportunities to give back to host country communities through service learning projects, providing an immersive experience that goes way beyond the classroom.

At Arcadia we are committed to helping students maximize the value of their time abroad, and to providing an experience that integrates the unique extra-curricular resources of each program site. Every aspect of our programs and services is designed to help you look below the surface of the culture, providing you with an integrated experience that combines academic learning with hands-on opportunities, helping you make your study abroad program uniquely your own.

australian parliamentary internship

Canberra, a city of green spaces and impressive municipal architecture, was purpose-built in the early 20th century as the seat of Australia’s national government. It is the site of Australia’s Parliament House, High Court, and supporting agencies, and it boasts numerous national cultural and social institutions, which include a museum, zoo, gallery, archives and war memorial. Located in the Australian Capital Territory and situated between Sydney and Melbourne, Canberra is an ideal place to undertake an internship.

You'll spend four days per week, for eleven weeks, at your internship site and be enrolled in a semester-long course that will introduce you to Australian politics and public policy. One of the most attractive features is that you will be participating in the program with students from all over Australia, as well as with other American and international students. Although participation in the Australia Parliamentary Internship Program will require you to spend a considerable amount of time at your internship site, you'll also have the opportunity to integrate into a university community and live on campus at the Australian National University (ANU).

housing

The residential nature of ANU, with many students in on-campus accommodation, provides a wonderful opportunity to interact with Australian and other international students.

highlights

- This is an exceptional opportunity to complete research for a Member or Senator of the Australian Parliament, or for a public service agency, industry or community organization, or lobby group.
- Students can take courses at ANU in addition to the internship placement.
- Participants are recruited nationally and internationally for this program, so you can expect your fellow interns to come from a wide variety of backgrounds.
- This program awards 16 semester hours of credit.

sydney internships

semester internships

Picture yourself working in Sydney, one of the world’s most exciting, international destinations. Placements are available in a broad range of areas, including business, social sciences, humanities, and the visual, fine, graphic arts. Throughout your internship, a faculty sponsor and workplace supervisor will be available to ensure that you are meeting your professional and academic objectives. In order to maximize the internship experience, you’ll take three courses (four semester hours of credit, in addition to completing a four-credit academic project). The courses are:

Workplace Realities: Politics, Culture, and Ideas; Australian Issues: History, Culture, and Place; Australia in the Region: Inter-Cultural Relevance and Economic and Social Perspectives

highlights

- Students develop an understanding of the work world but also of Australia and the Australian work environment.
- This program provides additional focus on issues of peace and justice and cultural identity. To extend this understanding, interns visit a remote indigenous community in order to understand its unique perspective on life, survival in a remote area, and financial and economic issues, and to observe how communities work together to manage business interests in their areas.
- Program lasts 14 weeks: eight-week work placement (four days per week, eight hours per day = 256 hours). Placements are unpaid.
- This program awards sixteen semester hours of credit.

summer internships

Spend six weeks in Sydney, working side-by-side with Australian professionals in such areas as arts, business, communications, public policy, or the social sciences. You will gain a deeper understanding of Australian culture; a clearer view of where your education, talents, and interests can lead you; and a greater sense of your place in the world.

highlights

- During your internship, you’ll work four days per week for six weeks and will attend the class Workplace Realities on the fifth day.
- You will be assessed on an academic project that you research and write that is based on your work experience.
- This program awards six semester hours of credit.

housing

On an Arcadia internship in Sydney, you are guaranteed accommodation in a furnished apartment operated by Arcadia University. All housing is in a residential area of Sydney that is convenient for shopping and easily accessible by local transportation.

Please visit www.arcadia.edu/abroad/internships for full details and fees.

china internships through the Alliance for Global Education

The Alliance for Global Education is a partnership of the Arcadia University Center for Education Abroad and the Institute for Study Abroad, Butler University, formed with the vision of opening non-traditional destinations to an ever-growing and more diverse U.S. undergraduate population.

Gain practical work experience in China for a semester or summer! A limited number of internships are available to students studying on Alliance programs at Beijing Language and Culture University (BLCU) and Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFU). Applicants should have taken at least three semesters of college-level Chinese language, or the equivalent, prior to application, and every effort is made to match a placement with the student's interest. Past placements have included positions in government-sponsored, non-profit, and private firms in the areas of economics, travel, market research, public relations, technology, and even art history.

The internship is worth three credits and, for semester students, will replace one of the area studies or business courses that Alliance students usually take at BLCU or SUFU. Other courses that are offered during the fall or spring include:

SUFU: Chinese language (six credits); China: Economic Giant (three credits); and electives in the areas of marketing, finance, or management (three credits each).

BLCU: Chinese language (six credits); Issues in Contemporary Chinese Society and Culture (three credits) and electives in the areas of film, economics, or environmental studies (three credits each).

For summer students, the BLCU or SUFU curriculum consists of five credits of Chinese language and the three-credit internship.

Faculty members will supervise all academic work, which will include a research project in English by each student.

housing

Beijing program students live in double rooms with other Alliance students in a new, foreign-student, residence hall on campus. Rooms are clean and comfortable with private bathrooms and are wired for high-speed internet.

Shanghai students are housed in the International Student Dorm on the university's downtown campus. Each Alliance student will live in comfortable double rooms with a Chinese roommate.

highlights

- This is a competitive, specialized opportunity to complement your future professional goals.
- Students have the opportunity to employ Chinese-language skills in a workplace setting.
- Coursework under the supervision of faculty supports the internship experience.
- Semester participants receive 15 semester hours of credit; summer participants receive eight semester hours of credit.

making study abroad affordable

The Arcadia University Center for Education Abroad has one of the most extensive scholarship programs of any study abroad organization. We are committed to helping students study abroad and believe that financial limitations should not prevent students from participating in a life-changing overseas experience.

- Every year we distribute more than $2.5 million in scholarships and financial aid for academic-year, semester, or summer participation.
- Arcadia can also process financial aid if you are earning credit towards a degree.
- Our staff can advise you on ways to make study abroad affordable. For more details regarding scholarship funding from Arcadia or other sources, please email our Financial Aid Coordinator, Rosemary Hall, at hallr@arcadia.edu.

I dealt with 147 countries in my London Internship placement. I got to do things I wouldn't have known about if I had just been a student in a classroom.”

JENNIFER JENCHURA
 Bucknell University student London Internship Program

Arcadia's challenging London internship programs combine real-world experience with special courses, creating a context in which to bring together your understanding of the work world and your professional accomplishments in it while in London. You will join in the workday routine of other Londoners and, in the process, gain valuable insights and skills that will continue to resonate long after your program is completed.

Arcadia's London intern programs offer an exceptional and exhilarating chance for personal, professional, and intellectual growth. Experienced intern program managers find placements to fit each student's specific academic and professional objectives. The employers and organizations that Arcadia works with are eager to provide students with a substantial and meaningful experience.

Whether you want to gain financial experience in a commodities brokerage, work in an auction house or at an advertising agency, explore non-profit management or assist a British MP in the Houses of Parliament, our internships are much more than mere observation or administrative assistance. Arcadia students work on substantive, meaningful projects and get to appreciate and recognize the results of their work.

Your internship will be complemented by academic courses designed to expand upon and reinforce your professional and academic interests, while providing a cultural context for your experience in the workplace. These studies will balance your program, and they include two core courses:

- Working in the UK and the European Union: the Politics, Sociology, and Public Policy of Business and the Professions is the keystone course of the program. You'll explore issues related to British and European culture, politics, business, and society, to help you reflect upon and enrich your internship experience.

- In the Work in Thought and Action course, students meet with an academic internship advisor to discuss and develop the academic project that they will complete – typically a research paper, creative presentation, or portfolio – related to their internship.

London Semester Internship

During the 15-week, semester program, students intern three days per week for 12 weeks. The program offers a wide range of internship placements within the art world, charitable organizations, media and production companies, healthcare establishments, government offices, and large corporate enterprises. Our experienced internship managers expect students to participate in projects that require resourcefulness, responsibility, and a mature work ethic.

Semester interns take the program's two core courses as well as two additional courses. For these latter elective courses, they can choose from either Arcadia University's London Now program courses (which take advantage of London's rich resources and provide compelling insights into British history and culture), or they can select courses from the variety available at City University or London College of Fashion. (Courses are worth three to four credits each.)

highlights

- This program provides a broad spectrum of placements from which to choose.
- Students enroll in courses designed specifically to complement the experience in the workplace.
- This program awards 14 to 18 semester hours of credit.

For more information about this program, contact Andrew Downs, Program Manager, downsa@arcadia.edu.

London Parliamentary Internship

For students interested in the workings of democratic government, the special advantages of a parliamentary system, and the way that legislative processes takes place – and for those who would enjoy an inner look at the British Parliament – the London Internship provides a unique and challenging experience. This internship goes beyond the tasks that student workers are normally given. Participants often work alongside a British Member of Parliament, conduct research, plan events, or assist with logistics.

highlights

- This special program offers the rare chance to work with a British MP.
- Students are required to enroll in courses designed specifically to complement the experience in the workplace.
- This program awards 14 to 18 semester hours of credit.

Parliamentary interns take the program’s two core courses as well as two additional courses. For these latter elective courses, they can choose from either Arcadia University’s London Now program courses (which take advantage of London’s rich resources and provide compelling insights into British history and culture) or they can select courses from the variety available at City University or London College of Fashion. (Courses are worth three to four credits each.)

London Internship Summer

A briefer version of the semester-long London Internship program, this opportunity nevertheless gives students an intensive immersion in the work world and in the professional culture of London. As in the full-term program, students enjoy this well established internship as a fun, invigorating, resume-building opportunity. For academic work, the summer internship requires only the Working in the UK and EU course and submission of a written project based on independent research and workplace experience.

highlights

- This program provides a wide range of short-term internship placements specifically tailored to your goals.
- In addition to the internship experience, students enroll in one course.
- This program awards six semester hours of credit.

housing

On Arcadia internships in London, you are guaranteed a shared room in a furnished flat or student house operated by Arcadia University. All housing is in residential areas of London that are convenient for shopping and easily accessible by local transportation.

(Note that all Arcadia internship placements are unpaid and may continue through the academic holidays.)

APPLICATION DEADLINES

india internships in Pune through the Alliance for Global Education

The Alliance for Global Education is a partnership of the Arcadia University Center for Education Abroad and the Institute for Study Abroad, Butler University, formed with the vision of opening non-traditional destinations to an ever-growing and more diverse U.S. undergraduate population.

Explore your career goals in Pune! With placements at some of the most forward-thinking and well-respected NGOs, as well as multi-national businesses, IT companies, research institutes and think tanks, this unique internship opportunity may be just the challenge you've been looking for.

All students participating in the Alliance program in Pune, commencing in spring 2009, will complete either a research project or an internship concentrating on contemporary India. Areas of focus can range from social justice, development economics, environmental issues, and public health to business and information technology, to film, journalism, and the performing arts! Students wishing to opt for the internship should indicate their interests to the Alliance staff early in the application stage, so a suitable placement can be arranged.

Internships and directed research projects are conducted under close academic supervision and require a faculty-approved reading list, weekly meetings, and final paper or project. The internship experience is worth six credits during the semester, and four credits during the summer term. It is supported by instruction in research methods and conversational Marathi during the coursework period. The required semester course, Contemporary India (three credits), is a political, social, and historical survey of post-independence India, providing context for the overall program experience for both semester and summer students. The remaining six credits for semester students are chosen from electives, worth three credits each, in social justice, environmental issues, public health, film, development economics, and Hindi.

housing

As this program is entering its inaugural semester, the Alliance is still finalizing student lodging plans. Students may expect semi-independent living arrangements with Indian families. As residents of a university town, many Pune families have student apartments with independent access attached to their homes. This offers an ideal combination of integration within a host family and the autonomy to which U.S. college students are accustomed.

highlights

- This program brings opportunities for placement within exciting NGOs, the international business and technology community, and institutions such as the National Film Archives.
- No previous language skills in Hindi or Marathi required; supplemental instruction as part of coursework.
- This program provides internship in a vibrant city of 3.5 million, a short train ride from the megacity of Mumbai.
- Semester participants receive 15 to 18 semester hours of credit; summer participants receive eight semester hours of credit.

Please visit www.arcadia.edu/abroad/internships for full details and fees.

dublin parliamentary internship

Arcadia's affiliation with the Institute of Public Administration (IPA), the leading educational institution for civil service in Ireland, affords you the chance to develop a real-world perspective on government, as well as on Irish politics. In addition, you'll learn how a parliamentary system works. Only North American students sponsored by the IPA have the privilege to intern in both houses of the Irish Parliament, the Dáil Éireann and the Seanad Éireann.

Before your fieldwork begins, you'll participate in an orientation that will prepare you for your parliamentary experience through intensive instruction that covers Ireland's constitution, political parties, issues and procedures, and upcoming legislation. Your individual initiative, ability, past experience, and your relationship with the Member of Parliament or Teachta Dála (TD) you are interning with will largely determine the type of work you are assigned. Responsibilities may include conducting surveys, researching and reporting on issues related to public welfare, and preparing for press briefings. The internship is unpaid and requires at least two full days per week.

The courses are designed to provide you with the necessary background to work effectively in your new cultural, social, and political environment, and are worth three credits each. Subjects include Irish Society and Politics, History of Modern Ireland, and Modern Irish Literature. Courses are taught by faculty drawn from the Institute of Public Administration and universities in and around Dublin.

housing

There are two housing options for students participating in the Dublin Parliamentary Internship: Arcadia University fully-furnished flats in Dublin or making your own independent living arrangements.

highlights

- This program brings the exclusive feature of working directly with a Member of the Irish Parliament.
- Students have the opportunity to do significant research in your assigned area.
- Students take courses in support of their fieldwork at Ireland's premier civil service institution, the Institute for Public Administration.
- This program awards fifteen semester hours of credit: six semester hours of credit are for the internship, and remaining credits (nine) are earned from enrollment in three courses taught by faculty at the IPA.

scottish parliamentary internship

If you are a hands-on learner and are a student of government, law, politics, history, economics, or sociology, an internship in the Scottish parliament may be right for you. Through the University of Edinburgh’s Scottish Parliamentary Internship, you can enjoy a unique opportunity to make a significant contribution by working with members of the Scottish Parliament who who, until recently, had not enacted their own laws for three centuries.

During the first five weeks of the program, you’ll participate in three courses taught by accomplished instructors from the University of Edinburgh’s Faculty of Social Sciences. The courses are designed to provide students with an overview of Scottish society, history, and culture, as well as to focus on Scottish government and politics (including in relation to Great Britain). Students are required to enroll in the following three courses:

- Government and Politics in the U.K.
- Scottish Politics
- Scottish Society and Culture

Following the completion of coursework, you’ll participate in a 10-week internship program under the direction of a member of the Scottish Parliament (MSP). Your assigned MSP will help you determine a research project and supervise your implementation of this project, which will be assessed by the academic coordinator of the program. You will not simply act as a file clerk or go fetch endless cups of tea. You will explore and write on significant policy questions. Recent topics addressed by interns include Female Representation in the Scottish Parliament, Controlling Firearms in Scotland, the Criminal Justice (Scotland) Act of 2003 and its Effects on the Criminal Courts, and Suicide in Scotland: The Need for a Hotline. You will receive research support from the University’s Institute of Governance. The combination of challenging course work and the opportunity to work side by side with an MSP will provide an unparalleled academic, professional, and personal experience.

housing

You will be assigned to housing in a student flat that contains single rooms, and shared baths and kitchens. Internet access is available in all student rooms.

highlights

- Our internship program enables you to immerse yourself in the culture, history, and politics of Scotland, through engaging academic courses.
- Program affords an opportunity to complete significant research under the direction of a member of the Scottish Parliament.
- This program awards 15 semester hours of credit.

toledo internships

semester internships

In addition to enrolling students in the regular semester courses in Spanish language and culture (four to five courses), the Arcadia program at the Fundación José Ortega y Gasset in Toledo offers these students the unique opportunity to experience the work world, including the Spanish work environment – and thus to further immerse themselves in Spanish life and culture. Fieldwork is supplemented with a course that looks at the Spanish labor market from a historical, political, and economic perspective. The course challenges students to compare and contrast the Spanish workplace with that of their own country, as well to identify cross-cultural communication issues and strategies for resolving them. Each week, students spend one and one-half hours in class and approximately seven hours at the internship sites.

All internships are supervised by professionals in the related field. Past internship sites have included the regional parliament of Castilla La Mancha, Santa Cruz Museum, Toledo City Hall radio stations “Onda Cero” and “Radio Nacional de España”, the Alcazar library, Toledo Chamber of Commerce, and local hospitals.

highlights

- Designed for students at the advanced level or higher. All coursework is in Spanish, taught by Spanish professors.
- Courses take advantage of the range of cultural opportunities available in Toledo through field study.
- Internships available in a variety of disciplines including art history, communications, business, journalism, political science, and health studies.
- This program awards 15 semester hours of credit.

summer internships

Arcadia University, in conjunction with the Fundación José Ortega y Gasset in Toledo, is pleased to offer a summer internship option based on the successful semester internship program. Internship placements are available in a number of areas, including business, regional government, health, communications and media, social work, tourism, and cultural organizations. Students combine 15 to 30 hours of on-site work with coursework covering various topics related to working in Spain and the European Union. This summer opportunity offers three to six hours of credit.

housing

Arcadia offers its Toledo interns the option of living in the residence hall at the Fundación, or with a carefully selected Spanish host family (for an additional fee). Our program manager can help you decide which option would match your particular situation and objectives for your time abroad.
